Notes to Financial Instruments

1. Matters related to financial instruments
   (1) Policy for financial instruments
   The basic policy of the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries is to effectively obtain necessary funds according to changes in business environment. Currently, funds are mainly obtained through bank borrowings, and issuance of commercial papers and corporate bonds. Temporary surplus funds are invested in highly safe financial assets such as time deposits. Derivatives are used, not for speculative purpose, but to avoid risks mentioned below.

   (2) Types of financial instruments and related risk
   Trade receivables such as trade notes and accounts receivable are exposed to customer credit risk. Trade receivables denominated in foreign currencies arising from global business development are exposed to foreign currency exchange risk. Marketable securities and investment securities, which mainly consist of stocks issued by companies with which the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries have business relationships, are exposed to market risk. Substantially all trade payables such as trade notes and accounts payables have payment due dates within one year. Some of trade payables denominated in foreign currencies arising from import of raw materials are exposed to foreign currency exchange risk.

   The purpose of short-term loans payable and commercial papers is mainly to fund short-term working capital and the purpose of long-term debt and loans is mainly to fund necessary amount for investments and lending and long-term working capital. Some loans payable bear variable interest rates and are exposed to interest rate fluctuation risk.

   Regarding derivatives, the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries enter into forward foreign exchange contracts and currency swaps for the purpose of hedging foreign currency exchange risk deriving from trade receivables and payables denominated in foreign currencies and loans to group companies, and interest rate swaps, interest rate cap contracts and interest rate floor contracts for the purpose of hedging interest rate fluctuation risk deriving from interest payments on debt.

   (3) Risk management for financial instruments
      (a) Monitoring of credit risk (the default risk for customers and counterparties)
      In accordance with the internal policies of the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries for managing credit risk arising from receivables, each related sales division monitors credit worthiness of their main customers and counterparties on a periodical basis and monitors due dates and outstanding balances by individual customer. In addition, the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries are making efforts to quickly identify and mitigate risks of bad debts from customers who are having financial difficulties.

      The Company and its consolidated subsidiaries believe that the credit risk of derivatives is insignificant as it enters into derivatives only with financial institutions which have a high credit rating.

      (b) Monitoring of market risk (the risk arising from fluctuations in foreign exchange rates, interest rates and others)
      Regarding trade receivables and payables denominated in foreign currencies, the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries generally utilizes forward foreign exchange contracts to hedge the risk for the foreign currency exchange risks identified for each currency on a monthly basis. Currency swaps are utilized to mitigate interest rate risk on loans denominated in foreign currencies which are made to foreign subsidiaries. In addition, interest rate swaps, interest rate cap contracts and interest rate floor contracts are utilized to mitigate interest rate fluctuation risk deriving from interest payments on debt. For marketable securities and investment securities, the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries periodically reviews their fair values and the financial position of the issuers. Additionally, the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries continuously evaluates whether securities other than those classified as held-to-maturity should be maintained taking into account their fair values and relationships with the issuers.

In conducting and managing derivative transactions, the division in charge of each derivative transaction follows the internal management policies, which define delegation of authority and position limits. Actual transaction data are regularly reported to the Director of Financial division.

(c) Monitoring of liquidity risk related to fund procurement (the risk that the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries may not be able to meet its obligations on scheduled due dates)

In order to manage liquidity risk, the Company and its consolidated subsidiaries timely prepare and update the cash flow plans based upon the report from each division and maintain fund liquidity.

(4) Supplementary explanation of the estimated fair value of financial instruments

The fair value of financial instruments is based on their quoted market price. When no quoted market price is available, fair value is reasonably estimated. Since various variable assumptions are reflected in estimating the fair value, different assumptions could result in different fair values.
2. Matters relates to fair values of financial instruments

The table below shows the amounts of financial instruments recorded in the consolidated balance sheet as of December 31, 2011 and their fair values, as well as their differences. Please note that financial instruments whose fair values are deemed extremely difficult to assess are not included.

Notes:

1. Fair value measurement of financial instruments, including securities and derivatives

   Assets

   (1) Cash and (2) Notes and accounts receivable, trade

   The fair value of these items approximates their book value because of their short-term nature. Thus, the book value is used as fair value.

   (3) Marketable securities and investment securities

   While the fair values of equity securities are measured by market prices at exchange, the fair values of bond securities are measured by the prices obtained from financial institutions, etc.

Liabilities
(1) Notes and accounts payable, trade, (2) Short-term loans payable and long-term debt with current maturities, (3) Commercial papers, (5) Liquor taxes payable, and (6) Income taxes payable
The fair value of these items approximates their book value because of their short-term nature. Thus, the book value is used as fair value.

(4) Bonds due within one year and (7) Bonds
The fair value of bonds issued by the Company and certain consolidated subsidiaries are based on the market price, when market prices are readily available. The fair value of bonds without market price is measured as present value, calculated by discounting the combined total of principal and interest by a rate with the current maturity and credit risk taken into account.

(8) Long-term debt
The fair value of long-term loans payable is measured as present value, calculated by discounting the combined total of principal and interest by an assumed interest rate(*) for similar new borrowings.
(*) For long-term debt to which the certain hedging criteria of interest rate swaps is met, present value of the combined total of principal and interest discounted by using the rates of relevant interest rate swaps.

Derivative transactions
The fair value of derivatives is measured by the prices, etc. obtained from financial institutions.
Forward exchange contracts and other instruments, to which the appropriation treatment is applied, are accounted for together with receivables and payables denominated in foreign currencies as a hedged item; therefore, their fair values are included in the fair value of receivables and payables denominated in foreign currencies. The fair value of interest rate swaps which are accounted for using special treatment is included in that of corresponding hedged long-term debt as those interest rate swaps are recorded as an adjustment to interest expense of hedged instruments under the special treatment.
2. Financial instruments deemed extremely difficult to assess their fair value

   (b) Available-for-sale securities with fair market value are stated at fair market value as of the balance sheet date. Unrealized gains and unrealized losses on these securities are reported, net of applicable income taxes, as a separate component of net assets.    (c) Available-for-sale securities without fair market value are stated at the moving-average cost.

2. Derivative financial instruments
   Derivative financial instruments are stated at fair value.

3. Depreciation and amortization of fixed assets

(a) If a forward foreign exchange contract is executed to hedge an existing foreign currency receivable or payable,
1) the difference, if any, between the amount in Japanese yen of the hedged foreign currency receivable or payable translated using the spot rate at the inception date of the contract and the book value of the receivable or payable is recognized in the statement of income in the period which includes the inception date, and
2) the discount or premium on the contract (that is, the difference between the Japanese yen amount of the contract translated using the contracted forward rate and that translated using the spot rate at the inception date of the contract) is recognized over the term of the contract.

(b) If a forward foreign exchange contract is executed to hedge a future transaction denominated in a foreign currency, the future transaction will be recorded using the contracted forward rate, and no gains or losses on the forward foreign exchange contract are recognized.

If interest rate swap contracts are used as hedges and meet certain hedging criteria, the net amount to be paid or received under the interest rate swap contract is added to or deducted from the interest on the assets or liabilities for which the swap contract was executed.
